

ELECTROCUTED.

Fred McGuire Pays the Penalty at Sing Sing.

He Was Killed Twelve Seconds After the Current Was On.

And Was Unconscious From the Instant the Current Reached His Body—No Indications of Burning or Marks of Any Kind on His Corpse.

SING SING, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Fred McGuire was electrocuted at 11:18 Monday morning.

McGuire ate a light breakfast, conversed with Rev. D. L. Conkling, of Middletown, and Charles Edgerly, of the prison, and, as the time approached for the execution, he was taken to the death chair, seemed to be fully resigned to the fate which awaited him. He confessed his guilt, and assumed full responsibility for the murder of Mrs. Gregory, and went to his doom a penitent man.

Back of the death chair is the closet in which the man who turns on the fatal current is concealed. The chair stood upon a rubber mat and was extended for some distance on each side for the safety of the physicians and electricians. Electrician Davis attached the electrodes to a battery of two incandescent lamps attached to a board which he placed across the arms of the death chair and the chair electrician, then, lighting up the lamps to show that everything was in working order, the voltage was found to be 1,000, which is 500 greater than was used at former electrocutions.

At 11:09 Chief Keeper Connors turned the signal to bring in the doomed man. One minute later McGuire, attended by Chaplain Edgerly, of the prison, and Rev. D. L. Conkling, of Middletown, entered from the cells. The ministers were repeating the Episcopal service for the dead. McGuire walked without flinching, and sat down in the chair. Keepers strapped his arms and legs, and the body was surrounded by the doctors, attached the electrodes. One of these was placed upon the temples and the other upon the back, which included the spinal cord of the man's head. The other was strapped to his right leg just below the knee. Both electrodes were saturated with salt water.

It took less than one minute to attach the electrodes and make the connection with the wires. Warder Brown gave the signal at 11:10.50. The current was turned. The subject jumped and strained against the straps, and the air forced from his lungs made a sound like a deep moan. At 11:11.00 the current was turned off at a signal from Dr. Irvine, the prison physician. The muscles relaxed and the body sank limp and lifeless in the chair. Almost instantly the current was turned on again. The body straightened at the straps again, and was rigid for three seconds, when the current was turned off.

The body settled back in the chair and for two minutes all present watched for signs of life. There were none. Dr. Irvine and Abbott at 11:16 pronounced the man dead. At 11:20 physicians were invited to examine the body. No indications of burning or marks of any kind were to be discovered. Dr. ABB, who has been present at two former electrocutions, said that it was the most successful that he has taken place. He said that without question the man died 18 seconds after the current was turned on for the first contact and that he was unconscious from the instant the current reached his body.

The autopsy was performed by Dr. Abbott half an hour after the man was pronounced dead. It revealed no signs of no destruction of tissues, and the external burns, which were present in other cases of death in the chair, were absent.

The crime for which McGuire paid the death penalty was the killing of Mrs. Amelia Gregory, wife of Joseph Gregory, a farmer of Middleburg, of Middletown, Orange county, on October 14, 1901. The crime was committed for robbery.

Her Most Violent.

New York, Dec. 30.—Emma Goldman, a friend of Bergmann, who shot H. G. Frick, cowardly Her Most Sunday night as he was about to begin his lecture to the German Socialists in the East group in Odd Fellows' hall. Most it is said attacked Miss Goldman in his paper. The quarrel is of long standing and has assumed increased bitterness since the shooting of Frick, which most disapproved. The woman, together with a wing of the socialist organization, holds that Bergmann is a hero and a split has followed. The affair caused considerable excitement and is likely to develop further.

Protestant Church Dedicated in Madrid.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The Standard's Madrid correspondent says that, despite the emphatic protests of the papal nuncio, the bishop of Madrid has dedicated the Protestant church with the consent of Premier Sagasta. Archbishop Pla of Dublin, Rev. Hyndall and several English clergymen were present. The consecration ceremony had been deferred repeatedly, as the approval of the conservative premier just succeeded by Sagasta could not be obtained.

Assaulted Soldier.

St. Louis, Dec. 30.—Monday morning the vault of the city treasurer at the city hall was found open and a number of papers therefrom had been placed on the table and burned. Later it was learned that Edward Forester, city treasurer, was present, and, according to his father, had committed suicide.

In 1880 employees in the manufacturing industries of the Bourbon city of Soudanah, Ga., earned on the average $396 a year. In 1890 they earned $521 a year. This point that the amount disbursed in wages rose from $417,640 to $548,700 during the ten years of Protection. Yet Savannah voted to discontinue this prosperity.

The friends of the Hon. Carl Schurz are said to be working industriously to secure him a prominent office under the incoming administration. By all means, Mr. Cleveland, give this eminent nuisance a place—send him as Minister to the Birding Islands, send him anywhere to get him out of the country.

The Louisville Times does itself credit, and presents a strong contrast with some no-called "state rights" papers, when it says:

The total number of deaths from cholera in the Russian empire since the outbreak of the still present epidemic is officially stated at 203,700. Several new cases of the plague have appeared in Hamburg, and the gravest apprehension is everywhere felt as to the possible and probable course of the pestilence during the next year. The first step toward the protection of this country should and doubtless will be the putting of all quarantine matters under the control of the Federal Government.

R. D. Samuels, who has arrived in San Francisco from Australia, tells a striking story of the hard times now prevalent at the antipodes. He says that in Melbourne, a city of 850,000, there are at least 7,000 men unemployed, and there are at least 6,000 men in the smaller town of Sydney. Throughout the entire country, too, hard times prevail. Head clerks, bookkeepers and men of that class accumulated during the boom to getting $13 or $20 a week, now get but $2 a week and are glad to get that. America, and California above all, is now the objective point of tens of thousands in Australia. But many of them cannot get here. They haven't got the money. We believe they have the blessings of Free-trade in Australia, and it is utterly surprising that the people should not come to America and be "oppressed" by the "robber tariff."

The Federation of Labor Congress in session at Philadelphia will have the several states to provide that the militia shall be used for the protection of labor in future strikes. This is a long stride in the direction of anarchy, and the sooner labor recognizes its mistake and recedes from this position the better it will be. In speaking of this extraordinary demand, the Kentucky Journal says it means that labor as a class must be recognized in the constitutions of each state and in the Federal Constitution. But if labor as a class, why not capital as a class? Why not farmers, clerks, lawyers, physicians and so on, each as a class? One is equally entitled to representation and recognition as the other; but neither one will get it, for this is a Government of the people, by the people and for the people in which there will be no special privileges, but equal and exact justice to all.

DECISION

Against the Trustees of Harper, The Grain Plunger, And Defaulting President of Fidelity National Bank, Cincinnati.

THE CASE WAS BROUGHT BY FREDERICK M. McHENRY in the United States Supreme Court—A Hearing Also Made in Two Federal Circuit Courts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The United States Supreme Court Monday rendered a decision against the trustees of E. L. Harper, the Cincinnati grain plunger and defaulting president of the Fidelity National Bank, in a suit brought against him by Preston & McHenry, grain brokers of Chicago, to compel Harper and his associates to pay their unpaid subscription to the capital stock of the Fidelity National Bank, Cincinnati, Columbus and Reading Valley Railroad Co., in order to satisfy the judgments of Preston & McHenry and others against the company, which remained unsatisfied after proceedings at law.

The court, in an opinion by Justice Shreve, says that the evidence introduced with Harper's organization of the company fully justifies the opinion of the court below that it was "grossly fraudulent" from first to last, and that a single honest sentiment or redeeming feature, and that the overvaluation of the property transferred to the railway company by Harper's pretended payment of subscriptions to the capital stock was so gross as to clearly entitle the creditors to the satisfaction of their claims. The court then considers Harper's defense that Preston, McHenry & Co., were not bona fide creditors.

His allegation that Preston and McHenry when they agreed to take the company's bonds in payment of Harper's indebtedness, supposed to have been cognizant of the mode of organization of the company and privy to it, is not supported by the evidence. It also holds that the evidence does not show that Harper's agreement to support Harper's agreement that his original indebtedness to Preston & McHenry, in payment of which they took the railway bonds, was not a bona fide debt, but a mere device to defraud the creditors of the Chicago bond of trade.

The United States Supreme Court Monday affirmed the judgment of the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of Ohio in the case of George J. Harwood, trustee of the last, vs. the Toledo and Ohio Central Railway Co. This was an attempt on the part of holders of our trust certificates to have the same redeemed, their rights adjudged to be paramount to those of the first mortgage bondholders, and to compel the performance of the terms of the trust certificates, as trustee, and the Ohio Central Railway Co. for the rental of rolling stock by the sale of said stock and the satisfaction of their claims.

The Ohio Central was sold by order of the court for the foreclosure of a mortgage for $2,000,000, in which the bondholders and reorganized under the name of the Toledo and Ohio Central Railway Co. The rolling stock was sold to the Toledo and Ohio Central, and the proceeds were used to pay the mortgage. The court's decision was in favor of the bondholders, and the Ohio Central Railway Co. was ordered to pay the mortgage.

Monday the supreme court straightened out a complication in the new district court of appeals for the Ohio and Indiana circuit by designating Chief Justice Fuller to temporary duty in the seventh circuit, to which Chief Justice Harlan is permanently assigned. It denied the application of counsel on the part of the Toledo and Ohio Central Railway Co. to have the rolling stock of the circuit court, and will wait in the newly created circuit court of appeals, the suit between the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railway Co. and the Kean, acting out of the railroad operations of Henry S. Kean, a few years ago. This is the case in which the circuit court of appeals has refused to hear it, and it is impossible to organize the appeals court without the presence of Justice Harlan or a substitute.
